Big Safe Burglary Solved In Texas

HOUSTON, Tex., April 30 (AP) — Houston police said today a week-old $225,000 safe burglary had been solved and more than 96 per cent of the cash involved recovered.

Detective R. B. Howard said E. R. Hamlett, Houston and Harvey A. "Buster" Marley, San Antonio, were arrested Sunday and charged with the burglary which took place last Sunday night at the home of Houston bakery owner Paul Denny.

First reports of the burglary last week said approximately $10,000 in cash and $100,000 in bonds were taken from Denny's safe.

Police announced today, however, that $95,605 out of $100,000 in cash taken had been recovered and $125,000 in negotiable bonds were burned by the burglars.

Police said a third man was involved, but had not been charged. The case had a tie-in with the reported kidnap-robbery last week of Hamlett by San Antonio sports writer Dan Cook and the Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Parks, who manages prize fighters on the side.

Houston Police Chief Jack Heard said Cook and Parks confessed robbing and kidnapping Hamlett, who was identified then as a car salesman. Hamlett said they told him they were police officers and made him take them to the home of his boss, who they also robbed. They got a total of $3,300.

But San Antonio Constable W. B. Hauck said Hamlett told officers that word presumably got around that he had a roll of money after 1954 Cadillac in San Antonio.

Cook told officers he staged the crime to "break" a big story and perhaps get a job on a big city paper. He said he knew about a big burglary — "bigger than the Brink's case in Boston." He said the job had been pulled in Houston, but never was reported.

Action of the officers Sunday in arresting Hamlett and Marley and charging them with the huge burglary apparently verified the story that Cook told after he was arrested.

Letter To Editor

Mr. James C. Williams
Murray Ledger & Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Jim:

Please accept my heartfelt thanks for the confidence displayed in me through your editorial of April 17. You put your finger on the most important point in this contest when you state you feel I am better qualified to represent Kentucky well in the Senate than anyone else seeking this post now.

That ought to be the main issue in any campaign — the ability of the candidates to perform for the people the services they desire.

Both your personal support and that of the Ledger and Times are deeply appreciated.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,
Earle C. Clements, U.S.S.

North Murray Club

Pottertown Club
The Pottertown Homemakers Club was organized in 1928 with 16 members. There are now 15 members, 4 of which are charter members. Mrs. W. A. Ladd, Jr. is now serving as president of the club. Pottertown is located six miles east of Murray, however most of our members live in Murray. The lesson most interesting and helpful was the one concerning Kentucky Laws. One of the longstanding projects of our club has been the giving of a box to two invalids at Christmas time. We always pay the expenses of our delegate to Farm and Home Week each year.

Paris Road Club
The Paris Road Homemakers Club has 18 members with Mrs. Alice Stealy serving as president. Our lessons have been most interesting this year because they dealt with the laws of Kentucky. We climaxed our study of the year Saturday night with a get-together.

Cuban Revolt Is Broken By Batista

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HAVANA, April 30 (AP) — The Cuban government announced today it had crushed a revolutionary outbreak in Matanzas, a seaport town 60 miles east of here, and that 11 rebels had been killed.

The government suspended constitutional guarantees to choke off further revolutionary threats and arrested former President Carlos Prío Socarras on charges he instigated the uprising.

Troops were posted at strategic points at Havana and public buildings were under heavy guard.

President Gen. Fulgencio Batista was at his Camp Columbia military headquarters.

The suspension of constitutional guarantees — ending the right of public assembly and freedom of the press — was invoked for the first time since the abortive revolt at Santiago in July, 1953.

Eleven Reported Dead
Government authorities said 11 persons were known dead and at least that many wounded in the Matanzas fighting between government and rebel forces. The army found three soldiers were wounded and that none were killed.

The fighting started at 10:30 a.m. Sunday when six truckloads of civilians attempted a frontal attack on the infantry garrison at Matanzas whose name means "slaughter."

The army said the attack was led by Reynold Garcia, a former employee of the Ministry of Communications during the Prío regime, and Julio Rodriguez, a former Havana police. Garcia was killed.

Hours after the fighting army patrols moved through Matanzas and the suburbs seeking remnants of the rebel force. Unconfirmed reports said suspected revolutionaries in Havana were rounded up.

The outbreak began during Havana's weekly "news blackout" when no newspapers are published. It caught hundreds of American tourists unaware. Scores were stranded at the Varadero summer resort a few miles from Matanzas when police threw up roadblocks.

A government communiqué on the uprising referred to a previous announcement which said rebels had gone out from Prío's country farm for inception of a terrorist campaign designed to "create a revolutionary atmosphere." Batista overthrew the Prío government in a coup d'état in March, 1952, and the ousted president took exile in Miami.

Had 'Submarine Guns'
Army Col. Pilar Garcia, on the scene of the revolt, said the revolutionaries drove up to the regimental garrison headquarters in six sand-bagged trucks, piled out and opened fire with submarine guns and rifles.

Garcia said the attackers were beaten back and not a single rebel was able to enter the garrison gate. The would-be revolutionaries fled to private homes, he said. Most of the dead were killed when the army laid siege to their homes, he said. He said "many" were captured.

Former President Prío returned from exile only six months ago. The government has accused him of masterminding all revolution and disturbances in Cuba during recent weeks including riots by university students.

The storm front hit the Detroit area with nearly three inches of rain, stalling thousands of cars, flooding highways, washing out utility poles, and overflowing ditches Sunday.

The rains were touched off by clashes between cold and warm air.

The weather bureau reported "phenomenal" temperature drops in the wake of the old front, including a 46-degree slump at Russell, Kan. The temperature got down to 11 degrees at Rapid City, S. D.

The tornado deaths were both in Illinois, where a storm described as a twister hit Elmhurst Saturday night, overturning a small boat and drowning two men. There were three deaths on Wisconsin's snowy highways and two of them broke a record of 87 days without a traffic fatality in La Crosse.

Snow depths mounted highest in Minnesota, where 15 inches were measured at Luverne. There was 10 inches of snow in Wisconsin and seven in Iowa.

New Cold Wave
Piles Up Snow

By United Press
A phenomenal April cold wave piled up more than a foot of snow in the North and sent flood waters racing through major cities.

The storm's snows, rains, and death-dealing tornadoes lapsed into a vast chill today, although heavy thunderstorms continued to batter Dallas and Fort Worth.

It was below freezing from Montana eastward to the upper Great Lakes. Metropolitan Detroit, and Gary, Ind., cleaned up from flash floods. Rivers dug out of heavy snowfalls in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa.

The cold front drove southeastward today, leaving at least two dead in weekend tornadoes and a mounting toll of weather-caught traffic fatalities.

IS GENERAL MOTORS TOO BIG?

Many of our public leaders are concerned over the size of General Motors, and wonder whether any corporation should be allowed to earn as much as a billion dollars profit in twelve months.

When they get in the billion dollar profit class undoubtedly every precaution should be taken to see that they operate in the interest of the public as well as their thousands of employees. Also strict rules should be enforced to protect competition.

If all these precautions are taken we can't see that mere size is dangerous, except that men who run corporations are human. It is a test of capitalism to operate such combines in the best interest of the public.

We think this country became the richest on earth partly because of Big Business. But Theodore Roosevelt taught us many years ago that the federal government is responsible to the people to prevent Big Business from oppressing Little Business.

In investigating General Motors we believe the best place to start is at the bottom so as to find out whether it aids or depresses private enterprise on the local level, or in the field of small business.

Everything is getting bigger than it used to be, including farming. And it remains to be seen whether this is a good and wholesome development, or whether it is time to grab the big stick used by Theodore Roosevelt on the Standard Oil Company and start wielding it on our leading automobile industry.

General Motors, as well as some of our other large corporations, has expended lots of money on public relations in recent years but there is still much to be desired in informing the public on how Big Business helps the individual and stimulates Little Business.

If it is found General Motors hurts Little Business, steps should be taken as fearlessly to stop abuses as Theodore Roosevelt's drive against the oil industry. If the government finds that Charles Wilson was right when he said "What's good for General Motors is good for the country," it should act in such a way as to make everybody's business prosper and not let business merely because it is big.

Marlu Bull Making Outstanding Record

MARLU ADVANCER COMMANDO

Marlu Advancer Commando is making an outstanding record through the quality of daughters that he is siring. This registered Jersey bull's first six daughters to complete their production testing records averaged 11,549 pounds of milk and 567 pounds of butterfat. These records were made on two milkings a day for 305 days and figured to a mature equivalent basis. This is an outstanding production record and they are also classifying high on body conformation. There are eight classified daughters with one excellent, six very good and one good plus. "Marlu" is classified excellent as an individual and should soon make a superior sire rating.

He was bred at Marlu Farms, Lincroft, New Jersey, where he was sired by the Excellent Superior Sire, Favorite Commando, and out of a very good daughter of Wonderful Advancer. "Marlu" is now in heavy service at the Kentucky Artificial Breeding Association.

Kirksey 4-H Club

A special 4-H meeting was held April 18, for the Kirksey 4-H club. This meeting ended a very successful school term with regular monthly 4-H meetings.

Mrs. Wratther announced the events that will be coming up this summer for the 4-H members. The Dawson Springs 4-H camp for Calloway County members will be held the week of June 25. There will be a district 4-H Fair at Paducah in August and the Kirksey 4-H leaders and members will present a radio program May 3, at 9:15 A. M. during National Homemakers week.

Mrs. Wratther discussed what summer 4-H project girls could have, and gave out project books. Mrs. Cecil Like will be in charge of a luncheon food project for Junior 4-H girls this summer. Mrs. Ocus Bedwell will lead a group of Senior 4-H in a dinner foods project. Mrs. Howard Bazzell, with the assistance of Linda Watkins will be in charge of a 4-H Good Grooming project just after school closes.

There will be a Junior 4-H baseball team coached by Bobby Bazzell. The girls will also organize a girls softball team.

The boys who have completed an electric project must have their records complete and given to their leader, Mrs. Kenneth Palmer, by the end of school.

The girls in the apron and patchwork group receiving blue ribbons were: Rose Mary Smith, Linda Dargell, Darlene Miller, Jo Beth Watson, Phyllis Jones, Sharon Chambers, Linda Wilson, Helen McCallon, Wanda Blakely, Janice Perry, Phyllis Perry, Sandra Cain and Cynthia Ezell. Farm Facts

RAIN - MADE TO ORDER. This month we are picking strawberries, planting corn and setting tobacco.
 How much we will harvest, nobody can tell - maybe a bumper crop - maybe not. Much will depend on the supply of water - the rainfall between May and August.
 No risk on the farm compares with that of the weather. About the only way to lessen the risk of drought is by the use of artificial irrigation. Irrigation is gaining rapidly in Kentucky, but not fast enough. Since 1949 the number of farms in the state using irrigation has increased from 67 to 1228. The acreage covered by such systems now amounts to 23,000 acres or about 28 times more than in 1949.

It seems to me that if Kentucky is ever to participate in producing small fruits and vegetables for shipping or processing the industry will have to be developed in areas where irrigation on a large scale is practical. Marketing and processing groups cannot operate long in areas where the volume and quality of the harvest is subject to the uncertainties of the weather. The problem is of enough importance to the state that the efforts of all agricultural agencies should be concentrated in developing an area where suitable soil and water is found and where the local people are interested.

PRODUCTION CONTROL. Farmers might well take a lesson from industry on how to control production and maintain prices. A recent news item tells how the production of tractors in a Louisiana plant had dropped from 437 a day in 1952 to 70 at present.
 The working personnel has been reduced from 7200 to near 3000 and now the plant is preparing to shift its production to other types of equipment. If farmers could regulate their production that way they too could maintain their prices and profits. Note Kentucky's cash receipts from farm marketings in January and February dropped from $130 million in 1955 to $56 million in 1956.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH. In-recognizing June as Dairy Month farmers should remember the fine services performed by the Kentucky Artificial Breeders Association. This organization marks its tenth birthday later in the year.

 It now has 49 local cooperatives with over 19,000 members, owning some 150,000 cows. The work of the Association has been a great factor in improving the productive qualities of Kentucky cows. The artificial breeding program makes it possible to multiply by 500 the capacity of superior bulls and makes the services of proven sires available, at a very low cost, to practically every cow-owner in the state. Improvement in dairy cattle in the next ten years will be at a much more rapid rate than in the past ten years. The dairymen that fails to take advantage of this modern program is sure to be "left out in the cold".

Passport to Happiness
 By MAYSIE GREIG

CHAPTER 21
 VAL TRIED the communicating bathroom door, but that too was locked. Still feeling worried, she went slowly up the stairs to the main deck where they were dancing. Dirk was waiting for her and she told him about being unable to get into Mrs. Featherstone's cabin.

"For heaven's sake, Val, don't look so concerned about it," he said, laughing. "Aunt May is very partial to a drop of champagne."

"But it is good for her? What does Doctor Magnus say?"

"He goes on the principle that anything that will cheer her up is good for her, and there's a lot to be said for that. She's a girl. She wouldn't let you in because she didn't want you to find her tippling. Come on, Val, smile, be gay.
 Let's dance. This is a girl's night."

Dirk's explanation of Mrs.
 Featherstone's behavior sounded reasonable, but she reminded herself that the physical welfare of the older woman was her responsibility - and Bruce's. Bruce had insisted that the health of everyone on this ship was his sole responsibility. But surely there was no need to run to a ship's doctor because your patient was over-including herself by drinking champagne?

But she would mention it to Bruce, if he asked her to dance. If he asked her to dance . . . She found herself glancing about the floor for him.

"Haven't you heard you should concentrate on your dancing?" Dirk reproved her smilingly.

"I've told you I wasn't a good dancer. Why do you dance with me? Her voice was suddenly ragged.

"It wouldn't occur to you that whether you're a good dancer or not, I would like to hold you in my arms even in this conventional way."

She looked quickly toward him, but he wasn't laughing at her. Her sense of embarrassment increased.
 She tried to make a joke of it.

"You do say the nicest things,

I wish I could believe you meant them."

"Oddly I meant that," he said.
 She knew now that he was serious, but she didn't want any further emotional complications on her hands. She liked Dirk very much, but she wanted him as a friend.

"I suppose everyone means everything they say on carnival night," she said, and laughed nervously.

"You knew I meant that, Val, but you had any clue to my feelings for you? Maybe I don't understand women so well, but young ones, anyhow, but remember I was brought up in a man's household. Up to now I've felt more at home with older women.
 I suppose psychologists would say that subconsciously I was seeking my mother in them." He gave a faint smile. "I'm always easy to understand your own reactions, is it?"

"No," she agreed.

"But," his voice became firmer,
 "I know I'm not looking for my mother-in-law. I'm looking for something entirely different."

She could no longer even pretend not to understand what he meant. "I wish you wouldn't say things like that, Dirk. Not now.
 Please continue to be my friend."
 She spoke in a low voice and looked up at him pleadingly.

"My dear, I'm sorry. His voice too low. "I won't worry you again. Not tonight anyway. I only thought it might help."

The music stopped and two of the other passengers, a young honeymoon couple, came over to talk to them. Val was thankful for the interruption. What Dirk had said had only added to her emotional confusion. Bruce had made no attempt to come near her, although during this interval she had been standing quite near them, talking to a willowy young blonde.
 Suddenly, unreasonably, she found herself hating the blonde girl. She had seen Bruce talking to her on the same girl several times previously and they had been leaning close together by the railing this afternoon as she passed by.

 They were laughing together now.
 . . . She longed to move abruptly away from them, but almost as though Dirk had read her mind again, he suggested they all go into the lounge and split a bottle of champagne.

Val scarcely ever drank, and that may have been the reason why the one glass of champagne went slightly to her head. The young man asked her to dance and Dirk partnered his wife, but as soon as they reached the dance floor the pursuer, who was acting as master of ceremonies, announced that this dance would be a Paul Jones.

"Oh blast it, you'll be swept away from me in a moment," the young man commented, smiling sourly.

A few minutes after they'd begun dancing the pursuer blew his whistle, they formed two circles in the usual way and presently almost directly facing Bruce. By all the rules of the dance he should have claimed her as his partner.
 But instead, he stepped lightly to one side and grabbed a vivacious buxom woman most unsuitably dressed as a little girl. Some other man claimed Val, but she didn't know who it was, nor care. Her feeling of bewildered hurt had changed to a sharp sense of anger.
 How dare he treat her like that!
 The pursuer who prided himself on his ingenuity even when it came to running a Paul Jones, provided her with an excuse. This time when he blew his whistle he called,
 "Ladies on one side of the floor, gentlemen to the other." And when they had arranged themselves, he blew his whistle again and called,
 "Ladies, choose your partners!"

There was a slight pause and a utter from the women; then as the band struck up again, they started across the floor in some embarrassment, but Val literally flew. She had to get to Bruce before any of the other women.

Bro. Don Kester Is Guest Speaker For The Hazel PTA

The Hazel High School Parent-Teacher Association held its April meeting at the school with Mrs. Wylie Parker in charge of the program.

Mrs. Parker introduced Bro. Don Kester, minister at the Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ, who gave a very interesting talk on "The Importance of Developing the Finer Things of Life In Your Community." In connection with this subject R. L. Cooper showed a film which related the importance of teamwork in the community.

The devotion was given by Guy Lovins and two numbers were played by the Children's Band.

Mrs. Art Lavendar, president, presided over the business session. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Calvin Key, and the financial statement was given by Mrs. Hester Brown, treasurer.

The president gave some of the highlights of the spring conference held at Reidland. She announced that the publicity book from Hazel won first prize. After recognition of the committee which compiled the book she expressed her thanks to everyone for the splendid cooperation given her during the past year. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Lavendar.

Mr. Lovins, the principal of the school, mentioned the many things the PTA had accomplished for the school this year and expressed his appreciation after which he installed the new officers.

Refreshments were prepared and served by Mrs. Hosick and the high school room mothers.

Mrs. C. S. Lowry Guest Speaker For Meet Of Murray Training School PTA Tuesday

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Murray Training School met Tuesday evening, April 23, at the school.

Mrs. C. S. Lowry was the speaker for the evening and talked to the group about her year's stay in Japan. She related interesting things about the Japanese people including the cleanliness of the race and their intelligence and willingness to work. She said the women could be seen cleaning the streets with brooms and that the cities were always clean.

Concerning the school where she taught, Mrs. Lowry said the students were extremely formal always bowing to the teachers when they met and standing each time the principal or teacher entered the room.

The PTA treasurer, Mrs. Collins, reported that the soundproofing of the lunch room and Garrett Bessie's room had been cleared of debt.

The PTA will hold its regular meeting at the club house on Tuesday, May 1, at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

Miss Laurine Tarry and Mrs. Harry Sparks will be the program leaders and will present the "High School Superlatives" in music from Murray Training School.

TWINS LAST YEAR, NOW QUADRUPLTS!

The Medina quads, two boys and two girls, snoring comfortably in incubator. One died later.

Mother, Carmen, 25, gets attention from nurse Marial Peluso and Dr. Leonard Hirsch.

Father, Ciprian, 28, is a bit aghast as he sits with last year's twins.

A MOTHER who had twins last year and now quadruplets is the big "new arrival" news in New York, but death of one quad in Flower Fifth Avenue hospital marred the family's happiness. Mother is 95-pound Mrs. Daxenne Medina. Father is Ciprian Medina, 28, a 40-a-week plastics stamper. Said she, "I don't know where we'll find enough money for clothes for the babies." The father said he'll have to "go out and get more money to support my family." (International Soundphotos) together of the four clubs in the Hazel community. The husbands attended and a lawyer was present to answer all questions.

Homemakers

Protemus Club
The Protemus Homemakers Club is located in the Lynn Grove community. There are 13 active members with Mrs. Thomas Lee Armstrong serving as president. The lessons on "Kentucky Laws" and "The Business of Handling Money" have been very helpful and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

West Hazel Club
The West Hazel Homemakers Club is located about three miles west of Hazel. There are eleven members with Mrs. Bob Moore serving as president. Our club is helping send a girl and boy to 4-H Camp from the Hazel High School. We enjoyed a community supper with three other clubs and a study on Kentucky Laws.

Dexter Club
The Dexter Homemakers Club was organized in June, 1950 with ten members. We now have 5 of the original ten with a total of 13. The information we receive as members is passed on to a number of outsiders in our community. We have sent a delegate to Farm and Home Week for the past two years. Flower bulbs and shrubs are exchanged annually; magazines monthly. The club provides leadership for the 4-H Club.

Harris Grove Club
The Harris Grove Homemakers Club is located on the west side of the county. There are 13 members with Mrs. Bill Wrathe serving as president. Some of their activities were a donation to the hospital and quilting a quilt for a family who had lost their home by fire.

Wadesboro Club
The Wadesboro Homemakers Club is located in the northeast section of Calloway County. The 22 members are from the Almo and Kirksey school districts. Mrs. Lowell Palmer is president of the club. One of the most interesting projects was basketmaking.

Coldwater Club
Seventeen Coldwater Homemakers met with Mrs. James Harris, the county president, and Mrs. Barlett A. Wadsworth, home demonstration agent, in the home of Mrs. Dewey Bazzell for the purpose of organizing the Coldwater

Eastside Homemakers Club
The Eastside Homemakers Club was organized in 1940 on the east side of the county with seven members. Their first project was doing some red cross work. There are now 14 members with 7 living on the east side of the county and seven in Murray. Mrs. R. E. Kelley, who joined in 1950, is now the president of the club. The most outstanding lessons given to the club this year that has shown more interest was the copper tooling and legal affairs. Visitors have told how they have enjoyed the lessons. To you women who do not belong to such a club, you miss a lot meeting with friends and neighbors for helpful and constructive information. It is amazing the information brought back by the capable leaders who take time from their busy daily schedules to attend the different training schools. Won't you join one?

Pleasant Grove Club
Most of the members of the

Kirksey Club
The Kirksey Homemakers Club was organized in 1948 and now has eleven members with Mrs. Macon Blankenship as president. The activities center around Kirksey High School and the Kirksey community, however, our members live in Murray, Coldwater, Stella and other localities. We sponsored a 4-H Rally and plan to participate in a recreation program for the young people during the summer months. We have sent a delegate to Farm and Home Week for the past five years and plan to continue in the future. Several of our members have completed the Book Award project and we also have our own library.
